Papers, Piles...Problem Solved!

How can the shortest month be so gosh darned long? For East Coasters, we've had lots of snow and too many days off from school. We've seen waaaaay too many movies, made too many snowmen, and even gone ice skating a few times. We have 2.5 birthdays this month (one in January, but we celebrate in February). We've had Valentin's Day and the Olympics (not like I competed or anything, just one more thing to keep track of). I've gone out of town for a business conference and a family trip. Whew! I'm ready for April.

But before we skip right past March, let's remember that the Filing Freedom class starts March 4.

You've been asking me all year for this class, and it's finally back!

Please stop reading right here and go click over to register.

If you struggle with paper, the Filing Freedom paper solutions class is different, special, and possibly the best present you can give yourself this year. It is different because it's not a lecture class. It's a hands-on class where you bring your paper, and actually create your filing system in just a few hours. It's special because you are learning from me, the system, and the other class participants, which is usually the best part. It might be the best present to yourself this year because it has a very good chance of finally giving you the tools to clear your counters, desk, couch, floors, and old filing cabinets from paper clutter.

Once you take the Filing Freedom class, you may audit for free each time I offer it. I really want you to use it and have the peace it offers!

I always LOVE running these classes, and I LOVE the breakthroughs that you all have when it clicks! I LOVE hearing your stories and finding out what you'll spend your time on when you are no longer shuffling papers.

The registration deadline is February 26 (next week), so I can have all of your supplies ready.

Ready to be clutter-free and finally a filing pro? Register today!
