Travel Light

I'm obsessed with packing lists right now. Back in the day I used to travel with a laptop that was only slightly larger than the carry-on I use now. Remember when suitcases didn't have wheels? Now my entire office fits in my purse, and I've whittled just about everything for a 4-week cross-continent trip down to just one carry-on bag. I hate heavy bags! I'm not quite to the point of "minimalist travel," but I am loving this gal's supplies for a 3-week trip...without any luggage.

My Pinterest board for travel has packing lists and tips I've been admiring.

Congrats to the two winners of my giveaway for Maxwell Ryan's new book, Complete + Happy Home. Heather even took her book on vacation with her. She wasn't traveling as light! All of my books for travel are on my iPad Kindle app. I don't know why I fought the switch to electronic readers for so long. Goodness, it's made life easier!

There's still room for you in the last half of our 2016 Summer Declutter 10-Week Organizing Challenge. Click here to see the list of projects, some of which are even good vacation projects. We'd love to have you join.

So why the focus on traveling light? I'm headed out to Organising Professionals conference in Melbourne, Australia with my opening keynote address, Take a Break from Your Small Business Without Killing It. It's winter there, so my ideal of traveling light will have to include sweaters, coats and boots, which is a drag on space, but I'm determined to do it. Follow me on Instagram to see what I'm up to down under.
