No Time for Crisis!

I hope your day is going just as planned.

I hope things happen on time, on schedule for you.

I hope that your little things don't go sideways and turn into big, ugly hairy things.

But mostly, I hope that WHEN things don't go as planned, you give yourself the grace to breathe and remember that this is life, and starting from an organized home base makes "life happens" moments easier to deal with.

My recent post titled Make Room for Crisis and Chaos prompted some very heartfelt responses. It's touching that so many of you took the time to tell me how this article hit a cord with you.

School is over in just a few days for my kiddos, and life will once again go from a pretty predictable daily routine to a three-ring circus of daily camp drop-offs, scheduling stress, and summer injuries. I LOVE summer, but it tends to get a bit crazy with kids. Hopefully we won't have too many crisis, but there is guaranteed to be at least a dash of chaos.

Perhaps you are gearing up for summer like I am. I've updated a popular post about how to organize and schedule your summer activities, with a free printable for summer 2017. If it helps you make room for the coming summer chaos, I'd love to hear.

If you want to have a little something fun to look forward to, please pencil in Saturday afternoon, July 1 for a fun DIY workshop at Habitat for Humanity Norristown. We'll each be creating a set of personalized photo coasters for yourself or to get you started on holiday gift giving. PLUS with registration you'll receive a 30% of coupon to use at the Habitat for Humanity ReStore! I don't think we have the registration link live just yet, so please just email me if you want to come, and I'll send you the deets as soon as I have them!
