Dear Darla

The newsletter is super short this month, folks. You see, I'm in a time crunch, and that's a good thing. I've finished a bunch of recent organizing and decorating projects, and I'm loading them up on my blog as fast as I can for you to enjoy. WHAT? You don't read my blog yet? No problem, just subscribe here to get new articles about twice a week. The latest one is a tour of the lovely Clover Market.

Speaking of time crunch, what about you? If you could use more time in your life, join us for the next Clear Path Strategies time organizing class that starts October 2. Sign up for it now, because October is almost here, and I only offer this class once a year. We do it just before the holidays so you can have more time for the fun stuff this upcoming season.

Yes, you can have more time in your day, but only if you make it happen. I'll show you how, and how to feel great about it!

Need some quick organizing tips before the holidays hit? Come to the clutter control presentation next Monday (info at left).

So what do you think? Do you like longer or shorter newsletters? Please click over here and let me know so I can deliver the best content for you. It would be great if you'd click the Like button while you're there. Thanks!

Sincerely,

Darla DeMorrow, CPO® , owner

...Come Shopping with Me

I know for a fact that you love to shop, because I help you organize it when you get it home. Did you see the recent post about one of my favorite places to shop, the Clover Market?

I also recently shared some of my favorite little shopping places from my trip to Indiana.

One of my favorite places is right here in Paoli, Vintage Home. Isn't this European family table gorgeous?

And of course, shopping the fall consignment sales are a huge staple for me a my mini fashion crew.

Last month, you even saw some of the shopping that I do without ever leaving my office.

If you don't love to shop, or even if you do, I can give you time back to do what you love. I do what I do so you can have the space you love to entertain and enjoy the people you love the most.
